

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An optical apparatus is disclosed which provides good usability and operability. The optical apparatus comprises a first memory storing a default setting data set for controlling functions of the apparatus and a second memory storing a user setting data set for controlling the functions. The default setting values included in the default setting data set are non-rewritable, and the user setting values included in the user setting data set are rewritable based on the default setting values.